Where better to tour in cold winter months than Queensland? It was the country that we were interested in visiting on this trip, and we were in their hundreds enjoying the journey with us and avoiding the winter chill in the south. This immense region, characterised by farmlands and agriculture fields running far into the distance, is a RV tourist's delight. The tow is easy on straight open roads and the hidden treasures are endless. Our travels begin in Dalby, 85km west of Toowoomba, and continue west all the way to Charleville, the thriving regional centre of 1387km drive.

Heading east from Cunnamulla we visit St George, home of the famous 'Unique Egg' and then call in to Surat, where the last Cobb & Co run took place in Australia. Glenmorgan was our last stop before ending our loop back in Dalby. All up, a fantastic

Queensland's outback. From there we head south to Cunnamulla passing through old country towns with unique stories to tell. We meet some travellers on the road keen to share their bush poetry and find a pub serving up burgers that would put Macca's to shame!
